Jason LaCombe, AIA

Jason is an Architect committed to quality design, sustainability and effective project management. Together with his direct communication style, his involvement in all phases of project development ensures that our projects exceed the requirements of both the client and their community. Jason brings a unique perspective to the design of his projects. Previous to joining Warrenstreet he held positions as both an architect and project manager for one of New England's Premier Design-Build Contractors. His experience from a construction managers standpoint includes educational, municipal, professional office and institutional projects.

Jason's talents allow for his involvement in all phases of a project development, ranging from master planning and conceptual design to construction documentation and contract administration. His pragmatic approach, commitment to sustainable building principles and focus on client service is reflected in the success of his clients projects.

Most recently Jason has played a key role in the construction administration of the South Cove Community Center at Eastman. The project is a $4M community center with multi-function rooms, administration offices, exercise rooms and support facilities and a three lane 25 meter pool. The project was the first to successfully negotiate the new 2008 NH Shoreland Protection guidelines.
